DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

2. Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

Art Unit: 2145

3. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it is too short and lacks details regarding which is new in the art. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

4. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

5. Claims 1-21 and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. These claims are software per se.
6. Claims 22 - 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. These claims are abstract ideas lacking in a tangible result.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

7. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

8. Claims 1-22, 27, 28, and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Reshef et al. (6,865,593).
9. Reshef teaches a method and system (abstract) of providing web site management subsystems, including change management subsystems (col. 1, line 1 – col. 10, line 60; col. 24, line 60 – col. 30, line 60). In particular, a remote indexing system (Fig. 1, #34) coordinates web pages (Figs 2 and 3) on remote web servers (Fig. 1, #28 and #32) such that static links are associated with addresses (col. 10, line 60 – col. 11, line 60), such that the index database, file, or XML object uses the link to look up addresses (col. 11, line 60 – col. 14, line 50).

Art Unit: 2145

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

10. Claims 23-26, 30, and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reshef as applied to claim 22 above, and further in view of Edelstein et al. (6,101,537).

11. Reshef teaches the usage and translation from pointers to addresses (col. 14, line 50 – col. 20, line 60), but does not teach that the link remains static while the address changes. Edelstein teaches a method and system (abstract) of providing an alias/address index (col. 1, line 1 – col. 10, line 35) wherein the registry allows tracking of moved addresses (col. 11, line 20 – col. 13, line 20). At the time the invention was made, one of ordinary skill in the art would have added Edelstein to Reshef not only to keep the index current, but also to allow the index to be more easily traversed (col. 3, lines 30-31 in view of col. 2, lines 15-55).

Conclusion

12. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. They regard further teachings on web aliasing and on change management systems and indexing systems.
